

CHARRETTE

On July 31st through August 2nd a design charrette was held to allow the public to provide their thoughts on the development of a master plan for the Seaboard area. The event was very well attended, and many ideas were provided for discussion and consideration during the morning sessions. The afternoons provided an open studio where the public could come by at their leisure and provide ideas and see the progress being made by the consultants. Some participants attended each session and spent the entire day there. The event culminated in a presentation on the final day at 6:00 that was also well attended. Since the event, the consultants have been reviewing all the public input and working on the development of the draft master plan which will be presented to the technical working group and then Planning Commission. The plan will eventually go to City Council for possible adoption.
